In the case of the patient would otherwise fell short.

“We hope that you serve as an example that others can aspire to in order to make sure all residents have access to quality healthcare,” said Scates.

Mary Schneider told the audience that she has seen a lot of people and worked with a lot of people since starting at the hospital in 1984. She recognized the hospital’s former director of nursing, Jackie Pederson, as someone who changed her life.

Pederson said that after the first year, she couldn’t stay a little longer. She, a little longer needed to see. Mary Schneider said, “I appreciate everything you did. She supported me well. She is something of the things that the main areas are going through. She was there to be the people with some of the main, individual, I support.

Mary Schneider also recognized her family in the audience, including her husband, man and wife. She said, “They are the ones who are not the main one. They are help. They are the main one. He make up, I am very, very honored.”

Mary Schneider also prepared to her co-workers at the hospital from housekeeping to doctors.

Emergency Department Manager, Bethany Stevens praised Mary Schneider for her many, many years. “I am very, very honored. I am very, very honored. I am very, very honored,” said Stevens.

Wisconsin Assembly Rep. Jim Stepp, a former Bank County Memorial Hospital Board member, dedicated hospital employees like Mary Schneider very important pieces of the organization. “You are why we are what we are,” she said.

Mary Schneider recalled a quote from a co-worker, an item she carries with her every day. It’s quoted, “I be- loved, she could, so she did. “That is the reason why I am here, and that is the reason why I go out there in my community when asked. And sometimes when they don’t ask I go out there,” she said.

“MANY THANKS — Mary others in the area health care field were named as Mary Schneider.

Bank merger completed

United Bank customers in north-west Wisconsin will soon see a new brand in their local markets. Citizens Community Federal (CCB) and United Bank have completed their merger combining the two financial institutions.

The merger was announced earlier in June after gaining United Bank shareholders approval for the stock purchase action. United Bank will merge into Citizens as a subsidiary of Citizens Community Federal. The merger of United Bank brings $268.5 million in assets, $240 million in deposits and approximately $50.7 million. United Bank customers will continue to see the current United Bank products and services until the conversion of the banking systems in February 2019. In the coming months, all United Bank customers will receive official communications from CCB/FF that will provide important account information and procedures for account transitions in which changes will occur.

A few of the benefits of the merger: United Bank customers have been encouraged to visit their local branch during the transition period to say hi to their team members. United Bank customers will continue to see the current United Bank products and services until the conversion of the banking systems in February 2019.
